Miss Florence Coffin is visiting friends in Mrs. William Mode Taylor has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. James T. Wright, in Macon, Ga. Mrs. T. G. Smiley and daughter Katherine have gone to Tampa and Orlando, Fla., to spend a few weeks. Capt. C. H. Fishback, of New Bedford, Mass., is visiting his mother, Mrs. John Fishback, on Ash street. Miss Prince, of Chicago, and Miss Beem, are guests of Mrs. Henry Mansfield at Morton Place. Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Parker, of Union City, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Kirschbaum on North Illinois street.

Mr. Warrick and daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lew Wallace, jr., on Ash street, and will remain some time. Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Adams entertained the Young People's Club last evening at their home on North Alabama street. Governor and Mrs. Matthews will go to Terre Haute this morning to attend the funeral there of Miss Susan Warren. Miss Winifred Cain, who has been the guest of Mrs. A. E. Dietrichs and Miss Roberts for several weeks, has returned to her home in Anderson.

Mrs. Jay H. Adams, of Spokane, Wash. is visiting her mother and sister, Mrs. John A. and Miss Mary A. Williamson, at No. 296 North Illinois street.

Bernhard Listemann, the violin virtuoso, who has recently located in Chicago and taken charge of the violin department of the Chicago Musical Coilege, will make his appearance in this city shortly. Mrs. August Kuhn and daughter, Mrs.

Goepper, entertained about forty ladies yesterday afternoon with a coffee at their home on North Tennessee street. The house was adorned with plants and flowers and an elegant supper was served at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Martha Eaglesfield Robbins, of Berlin, Germany, who chaperons ladies on tours through Europe, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. S. Hill, No. 418 Park avenue. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Robbins will receive informally to-day and next Saturday, before Mrs. Robbins returns to Europe.

Mrs. Augustus Coburn was the hostess for a charming tea yesterday afternoon which she gave in honor of Miss Angeline Moon, of Eau Claire, Wis. Quite a party of young married ladies and other young ladies were present to meet Miss Moon and enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. Coburn. The pretty home was exquisite with its dainty furnishings. The only adornment was a few American Beauty roses set in stem vases of cut glass, which were placed in the parlors. In the dining room the round table held a silver candelabra with white candles, and on either side were vases of yellow tulips or daffodils. Miss Georgia Maxwell presided at the small table and poured chocolate, while the assisting ladies dis pensed the other refreshments. Mrs. Coburn vas assisted by Mrs. B. B. Peck, Mrs. Hen-Coburn, Mrs. James Raynor Lilley, Mrs. Henry S. Fraser, Miss Ransdell, Miss Myla Coburn and Miss Bessie Peck, who alternated in entertaining in the parlors a: . the dining room. Miss Moon will remain the guest of Miss Ransdell for several weeks.

A PARLOR CONCERT. Rev. and Mrs. N. A. Hyde opened their spacious home on North Delaware street last evening for a concert for the benefit of the building fund of the new Mayflower Church. There was an audience that filled the two rooms arranged for them. The performers included some of the best talent in the city and the selections were choice. Miss Whittler and Miss Beck opened with a duet, "Mazurka" and "Country Dance," and were followed by Miss May Johnson, who sung "Herbstgefuenl," by Nevin, with violin obligato by Mr. W. C. Sterne. After an enthusiastic recall she repeated the song. Miss Carman played two numers by "Berceuse" and "Valse in Minor." Mr. Geiger was recalled for his rendering of "For All Eternity," by A. Mascheroni, with violin obligate by Mr. Sterne. Miss Johnson also sang "Ever True." by Shelley. Miss Maxwell gave a characteristic presentation of a carolie," by Nevin, and responded with an exquisite rendition of a second number. The closing was a trio, "Expectation," by Hofmann, sung by Mrs. W. C. Lynn, Mrs. L. Morrison and Miss Wintfred Willard Light refreshments were served after the musicale. Mrs. Hyde had on exhibition spread which was made by the ladies of Mayflower Church. It is embroidered and bears the names of those who worked on it. The sum of $179 was cleared on the

AN INITIAL TEA.

The ladles of Roberts Park Church gave a novel entertainment last evening at the residence of Mrs. E. G. Cornelius on North Meridian street. It was called an initial tea. A supper was served, and the cards bearing the menu were cut in the shape of the letter C. Every article on the bill of fare was named with a word or words beginning with "C," and it was called the "Cornelius Cottage Collation." Considerable ingenuity was shown not only in the menu, but in all of the arrangements. Candy was served by Mrs. J. Tutewiler, Miss Bowles and Miss Allison, and chocoate by Mrs. Chidester, Mrs. Coleman and Miss Rafert. During the evening there was a short musical programme, in which Mrs. Chidester, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Nay and Miss Abromet participated, and Miss Corn-well recited. There was a very large attendance of members of Roberts Park and their friends.

MR. AND MRS. FIELD RECEIVE. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Field, of Chicago, received their friends yesterday afternoon and last evening at the home of Mrs. Field's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bristor, No. 536 North Tennessee street. Invitations for the reception were sent out with those to the wedding, which took place a few weeks ago. In the afternoon Mrs. Field and Mrs. Bristor welcomed the guests in the parlor, made attractive with a pro fusion of daffodils and vines. Mrs. Field a vigorous body and robust strength, follow good health. But all fail when the vital powers are weakened. Nervous debility and loss of manly power result from bad habits, contracted by the young through ignorance of their ruinous consequences. Low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory

Recent communications from the secretary of the Illinois State Board of Health at Springfield show that in the past eight days seventy-eight cases have developed at Chicago, an average of nearly ten a day, which is not especially reassuring and does not indicate that the disease is being stamped out. From Jan. 1 to Feb. 5 206 cases were reported in Chicago, and the recent increase in the number has been so marked as to occasion some alarm. Last year there were 264 smallpox cases and forty-three deaths that city. The number of deaths from the disease last month was twenty-two, or practically half as many as during all of last year. GROWERS OF CARNATIONS.

Annual Meeting of National Society to Be Held Here Next Week.

The annual meeting of the National Carnation Society will be held in this city. The trade exhibit will open Tuesday morning, Feb. 20, at the Denison Hotel, and the carnation growers will make a display of these popular flowers. The business sessions of the society will be held Wednesday, beginning at 10 o'clock. This will be the third annual meeting of the society, which numbers about 150 members. The membership extends over the United States, with the greatest number from Pennsylvania, that being the acknowledged carration center. The following programme of papers has been arranged for the meeting: "New Carnations and Their Introduction Into Commerce," Fred Dorner, of Lafayette; "Border Carnations," Prof. Bailey, of Ithaca, N. Y .; "Carnations for Cut Flowers," E. Dailledouze, of Flatbush, N. Y .; "Desirable Varieties and How They May be Improved," R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O .; "Carnations in Canada," Walter Muston, of Deer Park, Ont.; "The Discrimination of Diseases Without the Use of the Microscope," Prof. Arthur, of Purdue Uni versity, Lafayette; "Flowers for Profit," J. T. Anthony, of Chicago. The Chester County, Pennsylvania, Carnation Society offers a gold medal for six blooms of carnations, any variety, not introduced before 1892. The competition is open to all growers. The present officers of the society are: President, E. G. Hill; vice president, J. M Gasser; treasurer, C. H. Ailen, and secretary, C. J. Pennock, of Kennett Square, Pa. Mr. Fred Dorner, of Lafayette, Ind. is the promoter of the newer type of carnations, and their enormous size, beautiful colors and great variety have made him famous among florists and those who keep abreast of the flowers as they are introduced by the different growers and appear in the florists' shops. Among the exhibitors who will show their specialties, new varieties and specimen lowers will be Fred Dorner, Hill & Co., of Richmond; A. M. Herr, of Lancaster, Pa.; C. W. Ward, of Moriches, N. J.; J. It is rich and varied in color, fragrant and has lasting qualities. Among the large family of the dianthus, our carnation, the dianthus carvophyllus is the most prominent; dianthus, from dios, divine, and anthos a flower. Carnations are grown from seed. A large pro portion of the bloom will be double, with a great variety of color shades and markings. Carnation lovers know that almost every shade, except the blues, may be secured in the carnations. Laura Ray and Grace House, fugitives

from the House of the Good Shepherd, were arrested, last night, at a resort at No. 27 North New Jersey street. The prisoners are about twenty years old. Both are pretty, but wholly abandoned to vicious habits. They escaped from the convent three weeks ago and have since been inmates of the resort where they were found. Yesterday morning Superintendent Powell received from the Sister Superior of the convent a description of the fugitives and instructed Captain Quigley to find them. Information from the convent suggested that they would probably be found at the place indicated, but yesterday when the police called to see, the keeper of the house claimed that the girls were not there. Last night she summoned patrolmen Slate and Steinruck to the house and produced the girls, claiming that she had just learned of their escapade. Both were slated on the fugitive charge, but the superintendent decided that they could only be held on the charge of frequenting a resort. Both girls asserted that they would not return to the institution and avowed that they would endure a workhouse sentence rather than be taken back to the convent. The House girl has been under the care of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd for nearly three years. She came here from Logansport. She stated that her parents are both dead and that she entered the convent for the purpose of learning a trade. Laura Ray has been an inmate of the institution for a year. She was sent from Crawfordsville by her foster parents, and asserts that she too, expected to be taught some industry. Three weeks ago the wayward girls planned to escape. They left the convent at night, through a window ten feet from the ground and by means of an improvised rope which they constructed from the bedclothing. Then they entered the resort. They express no regrets. When arrested both girls were tastefully dressed. The police matron, after an hour's conversation with them last night, stated that in all her experience as a matron she has never seen two girls more willfully persistent in a desire to do wrong. The prisoners bitterly denounced the convent. They say that they were kept there against their will, and were given no employment except washing and ironing. The Ray girl is tall and slender, with dark eyes and hair. She yet shows some appearances of the refinement with which she was surrounded before she foolishly deserted a good home. When a small child she was taken into the household of one of the prominent families of Crawfordsville. She took the family name, was sent to school and given every opportunity afforded in a Christian home. The girl grew to womanhood and entered respectable society, but an inborn vicious spirit began to develop itself and her foster parents undertook to break it. In this they were unsuccessful. Two years ago their foster daughter created a sensation in the family and among her friends by leaving her home. She se-cured a position at one of the Crawfordsville hotels and for two months was employed as a dining room girl. Her adopted parents, smarting with humiliation, secured her discharge and offered her again the hospitality of their home. She refused and took service in a candy store, where she remained a few months and then concluded

SENATE TARIFF

Views of a Republican Member of the Finance Committee.

He Thinks the Minority Should Not Unnecessarily Delay Action on the Measure-Deposits for Bonds.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.-Democratic members of the Senate committee on finance refer all inquiries as to the date when the tariff bill will be disposed of to the Republican leaders in the Senate. "Of course the majority will do everything they can to expedite consideration of the bill and try to get it into law at the earliest possible day, but the Republicans have it in their power to delay final action, and you must ask Senators Sherman, Allison or Aldrich, of the finance committee, or some other Republican leader," is the way the Democratic Senators reply to inquiries as to when the tariff bill will be finally acted upon.

Republican members of the finance committee are wary of expressing opinion as to when the bill will be disposed of or giving any indication as to the programme of the minority, but they all declare that while the bill will not be rushed through there will be no factious delay on the part of the Republicans. "We do not propose to have Democrats on the hustings during the approaching campaign lay at our door any responsibility for the continued depression in business," said a leading Republican member of the finance committee to your correspondent to-day. "The Republicans cannot afford to herald their intentions respecting consideration of the tariff bill further than to say that there must be due consideration, time in which we may offer and advocate proper amendments and warn the majority against the adoption of features which will destroy the interests of the country. You can emphasize fact, however, that there will no factious opposition, no opposition intended to simply delay final action upon the part of the Republicans. The Democrats are contending that as soon as this bill gets into law the fires in factories and mills will be started, the doors opened, men will return to work. and there will be resumed at least a part of our former prosperity. While we do not intend to stand idly and mum and permit the Democrats to pass any kind of a bill desired by them without suggestion and warning, it will not be truthfully charged that we offered opposition simply to de-feat final action. I realize thoroughly that from a political point of view it might be better for the Republicans if the present conditions continued as far into the approaching campaign as possible. I realize further that when the Wilson tariff bill becomes law many factories which have been closed will resume operations, and many men who are now idle will be given employment. This, of course, will operate to a certain extent against the Republicans in their campaign. But I know, and so do all the other Republicans in Congress, that the factories will hereafter, or so long as the Wilson tariff bill remains upon the statute books, operate without much, if any, profit, and labor will be paid less wages. Beside the cruelty which would attach to Republican delay in action upon the tariff bill, there would at the same time be given the Democrats opportunity to charge that delay to us, and for them to say that times will be a great deal better under the operation of the new tariff law than they really will be; therefore, i is better that the country know exactly how the Wilson bill will operate before the voters go to the polls. "Every intelligent person knows," coninued the Republican Senator, "that there has now been a stop in the production of manufactured good in this country for over a year; that very soon after the Democratic victory in November, 1892, the factories began to close up entirely or run on short time. There has since then been little produced, and we have been steadily consuming the surplus, until we now find our factories almost empty. Certainly we have reached a point where they must start up on some basis and begin the production of sufficient to meet the pressing demands The day of starting is being deferred until the tariff bill becomes law, so that the producers may know just what they can do n the way of buying material and paying for labor. There would be some production and some sort of wages paid labor until the demands of consumers were checked if we went upon an absolutely free-trade basis. This little spurt of brightness in the commercial world the Democrats during the coming campaign will take advantage of, and they will claim that it is the precursor or harbinger of better times permanently. But we all know that Europe is jammed full of manufactured goods, ready to be poured into this country as soon as the customs duties are lowered. Thus the factories cannot be kept going very long after the new tariff goes into effect, unless they are run upon the English basis. You will remember that the Democrats announced that as soon as we repealed the sliver-purchasing act the hard times would be over. The repeal did improve conditions, but only momentarily, and now they are again distressful. You will see that history repeated when the new tariff bill is promul-Work of the Committee. WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 .- The Senate subcommittee on the tariff bill is sitting almost constantly now, not only through the day, but well into the night, and is holding frequent conferences with the full Democratic membership of the committee. The subcommittee has almost completed its work on the minor details of the bill, but the more important questions which have puzzled them from the beginning, unless it may be the income tax, are still giving them worry, and many of them do not appear to be any nearer settled now than they were when the bill first reached the Senate. There no longer appears a disposition to change the income tax in any way, and it may be accepted that it will be retained. Indications still point to an increase of the whisky tax to $1.20 per gallon and an extension of the bonded period, though there is some disagreement in the committee. Figures furnished by the Internal-revenue. Commissloner, who has been in frequent conference with the committee, show that if the bonded period is to be extended the increase made by the House will not increase the immediate revenues at all, if the tax is to remain as fixed by the House, whereas, if the tax is made $1.20 instead of $1 the bonded period can be extended and the revenue increased about $18,000,000 per year. The sugar question is still in dispute.

Mr. Hitt Thinks the Hawaiian Controversy Not Yet Settled.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.-President Dole's letter has again started discussion of the Hawaiian question among Congressmen. It is possible also that it may lead to reopening the entire question in the House. Representative Hitt, the Republican head of the foreign affairs committee, is considering the advisability of proposing a rehearing in view of the Dole letter and the developments of the Senate investigation. Mr. Burrows suggested that such a move would be in the nature of a motion for a new trial, based on the discovery of new evidence. Mr. Hitt regards the Dole letter as a very forcible presentation of the subject, and he thinks it should have been in the hands of the members before they were asked to pass on the Mc-Creary resolution. It can hardly prove effective now, unless Mr. Hitt concludes to urge the rescinding of the McCreary res-Mr. McCreary, chairman of the foreign

PRENDERGAST IN A RAGE.

The Assassin Angered by the Appear ance in Court of Attorney Trude.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16 .- Prendergast, the assassin, created a stir in Judge Brentano's room to-day during the hearing of the arguments for a new trial. The prisoner had taken his seat quietly, but when attorney A. S. Trude, who conducted the prosecution, entered the court room, Prendergast apparently grew wild with rage, Springing from his chair he yelled at Mr. Trude and attempted to rush to where the attorney stood. Several bailiffs surrounded the excited prisoner and forcibly took him to his seat, where he sat glaring at Mr. Trude. Finally Prendergast requested the court to allow him to talk to attorney Trude and, upon the Judge's consent, sat down by the lawyer and quietly asked: "Mr. Trude, have you any feeling against

"Not personally," replied Mr. Trude. "I am simply doing my duty.' The prisoner than conversed with the attorney for some time, but in so low a voice that no one else in the court room could near what he said. After a time he was led back to his seat, where he sat staring blankly at the court, apparently paying no attention to the plea his attorneys were making for his life. Judge Brentano, who is presiding in the case, has received an anonymous letter threatening his life. Half a dozen armed officers were in court to-day to guard the Judge. The letter warned the court that unless he was lenient with Prendergast he would be killed.

The prisoners in the county jail are alarmed, or pretend to be, over the stories of visitations by the spirit of George H Painter, who was hanged there Jan. The spirit of the murderer is alleged to make uncanny calls at his old quarters, a number of the prisoners claiming to have seen the ghost of Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, is said to be especially alarmed and in great terror of a personal visitation from his late neighbor in "mur-
